_____ Our fundraising intern will assist in fundraising/donor research, help draft grant proposals, sit in on board and investor/donor meetings, and help develop strategies to develop and expand our institutional capacity in that regard. This intern will come away with a better understanding of the full cycle of non-profit fundraising: from the initial research, pitch, execution and follow up.

_____ Our intern for creative community organizing will help represent PULSE at cultural/creative events, attend meetings with community stakeholders, and develop strategic ways to engage with and organize the creative community based on our prospective Manila arts and culture events calendar and other available information. The intern may be asked to assist one of our partners with her upcoming July exhibition. At the end of the internship, this intern should have a clearer understanding of the intricacies of organizing communities and creating buy-in from key stakeholders. Also, it's a fantastic introduction to Manila's creative scene.

_____ Our production intern will assist Rovaira in her capacity as MNL's producer, where the intended intern will be exposed to different aspects of successfully running a television production. It is project management at its core, learning to handle all the different components of production such as, but not limited to: collaborating on the creative content with the writers, managing the budget and developing new sponsorships with the producers, and reviewing scripts and story lines with the cast.

2. Please explain why you are interested in interning with PULSE. How do your academic or professional interests compliment the work PULSE is trying to achieve? Feel free to link your response to your above position preference(s).
